

With Flying Colors: A Note from a Man named after the Rainbows

Another steak of colors lies in the hands of a man; a man that stand tall and looks at the bounty of the horizon; a man with his shield to defy the arrows that were thrown to him. Together with his army of honor, this man fight against the fiery challenges that he is about to encounter; a man of power but of no sword, for his weapon is not the sharpness that cuts but the light that illuminates.

Meet Sahm Pasaol, the man with flying colors.

Confident of his chosen career, the President of the Senior High School Student's Supreme Council of Cor Jesu College, Inc, starts to light up the way. Started in a simple childhood with a desire to lead, this child does not only dream to be a leader but act as a leader he wanted to be.

Way back his childhood days, he always admired the deeds that his family bears in hand. As a child from a family of politicians, he saw that he can be a potential leader even in his young age.

Being a leader is never an easy task, but for Sahm, he can do anything to become a better leader than anyone else. Now that he became a rising hue achieving his dreams and is now the president of one of the biggest communities in school, these beasts along his path that he needs to defy is a part of his way to be recognized as a man of his own identity.

"As a leader of a former successful council, I became pressured and stressed," he stated and continued "but it did not stop me and my troupe to still do the best". This year's administration has increased number of students to foster and it became a challenge to the SSC especially to Sahm being the president. Despite that fact, we can always see progress in the council, progress that every student feel.

'Faith' is the key, as he defined it, to be able to build success. With this, like the wheel with all the weight and pressure, he will always be playing his role to serve the CJC Senior Highschool community. With faith, he believes that helping hand gives every leader the feet to rise again.

"Every administration has its flaws, and with every "stage of crisis", there are hands in filling the gaps of the team." As a President of the Council and as the voice of every student, he has always the ears to listen, bands to flex, a wall to lean and a spark of light up the good way.

I asked him "What color are you?" and he told me one thing, he wanted to leave a mark. He wanted to be the white streak of light, like an open book, ready to be splashed by ink and create a meaning of himself, that this white of pure always leave a mark, an emblem, a legacy.

"You don't have to change yourself. Nothing is wrong with you as long as your goal is to become good. You don't need to be someone that is feared of, rather be someone that is worthy to be respected. Every leader is a president, but be not just an ordinary leader. Be a leader in a Cor Jesian way," noted from a man named after the rainbows, our Senior Highschool President, Sahm Pasaol.
